3. REASONS FOR SWITCHING

---

I notice that you voted for [...] in the general election last year, but you voted differently – for [...] – in the by-election this week. What is the main reason you voted differently in the by-election?

	ALL
Not happy about the coalition / disagree with specific coalition policies	32%
Voted tactically as the Lib Dems stood a better chance of beating Labour / Conservatives couldn't win	17%
Liked Elwyn Watkins and the stand he took to force the by-election	5%
Disillusioned with all the main parties	3%
Liked Debbie Abrahams but didn't like Phil Woolas	2%
Didn't vote Labour in general election because of Gordon Brown and now he has gone	2%
Approve of / wanted to support the coalition	1%
Other	38%

From your last answer, what led you to conclude that the Liberal Democrat candidate had a better chance of beating Labour and winning the by-election than the Conservative candidate did? [All those giving this as the reason for switching from the Conservatives to the Lib Dems]

	ALL
Learned from TV or newspapers that Lib Dems were only a few votes behind at general election	43%
Just knew / remembered from last election	22%
The Lib Dem campaign literature emphasised it	9%
Other	39%
